

Ware Designs

Fine Jewelry since 1977

Expanding our Services with Two Goldsmiths

- Custom Designs
- Appraisals
- Expert Repairs
- Pearl Restringing

All your jewelry is insured with Jeweler's Block Insurance.

$5 off Watch Battery

Reg $15, Now $10

1 watch battery per person. Exp. 10/15/18. Usually installed while you wait. W/coupon. Restrictions apply.

3645 Mt. Diablo Blvd., Lafayette between Trader Joes & the Post Office
283-2988 www.waredesigns.com Tuesday-Saturday 10-6

“The War of the Roses” an epic production at Cal Shakes

By Lou Fancher

THE WAR OF THE ROSES

HENRY VI TRILOGY + RICHARD III

Image provided

Remarkably, “The War of the Roses” at Cal Shakes makes four hours in the company of tyrannical, villainous, evil, vengeful characters whose specialties are butchery and betrayal a desirable outing. Directed by Artistic Director Eric Ting, who with dramaturg Philippa Kelly adapted and combines Shakespeare’s “Henry VI” trilogy and “Richard III,” the production bristles with intrigue while blazing through 15th century English history from the end of the Middle Ages to the Tudor reign.

Ultimately, the question as to why Ting aimed his sites at producing four plays in one is far less intriguing than a second question: Does it work?

Largely, yes. On several counts.

Although Shakespeare himself took some liberties with facts – relying only on the plays for learning English history would be like picking up American history entirely from Twitter or Hollywood films – War of the Roses’ condensed history plays are an adequate if imperfect entry point for those whose historical awareness is lacking. Suffice it to say there are kings, queens, dukes, duchesses and government and church dignitaries whose rivalries to gain or retain power exploit soldiers, citizens and often, their closest family members. Audiences get the gist, which is enough to know a foul odor emanates from the channels of oligarchy and patriarchy.

The production hosts a bold cast with the chops to barrel into counter-type, gender crossover, and multiple role casting. Actors balance each other so that each is spectacular but no one person steals the shine from another actor, and a versatile set design (Nina Ball) instantly brackets both past and future. The overhanging “cage” bears modern style subtitles and name labels to assist in following the complexities of plot and characters. Costumes (Anna R. Oliver) and lighting design (Jiyoun Chang) extend and magnify themes related to class, competition, ghostly afterlife, violence and peace. There’s even live electronic music (Josh Pollock) that adds gritty, contemporary edginess throughout the production.

Because the play gives more voice to women in ways that traditional versions tend not to, especially developing the arc of Queen Margaret, “War of the Roses” deepens understanding. Not only that, but the ghostly mothers who haunt and throw curses upon Richard III, having received fuller profiles in Act I, become not just vengeful spirits but real souls whose pain resonates with extra intensity. It’s not just fine acting that produces this result; it’s time and careful directorial and script considerations courtesy of Ting and Kelly.

But it is an homage to language where the production most excels. Credit Kelly to large extent (and come early to her pre-show chats for an extra treat). The script is soaked with Shakespeare’s gems that emerge like brilliant showstoppers out of the confusion of names, titles and family feuding: “Things ill-got have ever-bad success,” or “Virtue is choked by foul ambition.” And the Duke of York’s description of Queen Margaret’s “tiger’s heart wrapped in a woman’s hide.” And many more.

The production is not perfect. There is a skipping stone feel to the first act and a recent trend to have disembodied voices broadcast from speakers in the back of the amphitheater., which worked in a previous production, had audiences searching for the source instead of focusing on the stage at crucial moments.

As a four-hour experience, however, “The War of the Roses” offers a parallel thinker ideas to take away. Is leadership a corrupting force? Are alliances doomed to fail? Will a marriage founded on fortune ever result in love? What forces will trust, kindness and allegiance endure and which ones will cause them to tumble and fail? But mostly, the remarkable afterthought is how much fun it has been to be in the company of truly creepy people.

The Cal Shakes production, “The War of the Roses,” runs through Sept. 15 at the Bruns Amphitheater in Orinda. For tickets or information, visit www.calshakes.org.

TREE SCULPTURE

COMPLETE TREE CARE
Proudly serving the East Bay since 1965!
Fully Insured ❖ Certified Arborists ❖ License #655977
(925) 254-7233 ❖ www.treesculpture.com

LIVING TRUST

$895 COMPLETE
Valid until October 3, 2018

FREE INITIAL CONSULTATION

Plan Includes:

- Trust Agreement
- Pour Over Will
- Guardianship of Minor Children
- Power of Attorney for Finance
- Transfer of Real Property
- Advanced Health Care Directive

Notary Services Included!
(925) 257-4277
www.smykowskilaw.com
laurensmy@gmail.com
Office Located in Walnut Creek

Law Offices of
Lauren Smykowski

TAXI BLEU

All Airports Served 24/7

Dispatch: 925-849-2222
Direct: 925-286-0064
www.mytaxibleu.com
mytaxibleu@gmail.com

THE #1 Premier Active Senior Living Community in Downtown Walnut Creek!

Our Walkability Rating of 100 = Better Health & Social Engagement!

- It’s all about Location, Location, Location
- Savory Restaurant-style Dining
- Heated Pool, Spa, & 24-Hour Fitness Center
- Continuing Education & Social Events, Weekly off-site Excursions
- Optional In-Home Care, if needed, can age-in-place to 120+

Call 943-7427 Today to schedule a Tour!
www.TheHeritageDowntown.com

SMC students continue a colorful tradition

Submitted by Kay Carney

Photo Haley Nelson

More than 650 first-year and 160 transfer students moved into their residence halls at Saint Mary’s College Aug. 23, with the day kicking off the College’s annual Weekend of Welcome for new and returning students. In keeping with the Saint Mary’s tradition of service, more than 100 student volunteers comprised of sophomores, juniors, and seniors helped out new Gaels by swooping in to unload cars, carry boxes of school supplies and personal effects, and help the new students transition into their new on-campus home.

Moving into the residence halls was the first of many activities spanning four days, steeped with games, a carnival, resource fair, pool party, and perhaps the most photogenic and physically engaging activity – the distinctly sloppy and fun “Paint the SMC” event, which happened Aug. 25. A longtime SMC tradition, students hiked up the hill to paint the large SMC letters that overlook campus. No brushes were allowed. Students used only their hands to paint not only the SMC letters, but each other as well.

Submit stories and story ideas to storydesk@lamorindaweekly.com